

BADGERS

By Alazar

ADAPTATION'S FOR SURVIVAL

To begin, did you know a badger can run up to 30mph? This animal, uses its claws to dig, scrape, and sometimes even kill. Its jaws can kill animals. The jaw is really strong . Badgers have four canine teeth that are large and sharp like knives. They are so sharp they can kill their prey in just a matter of seconds.

Body covering

My animal's body covering is extra fur that sheds. The color of the fur is black, white, gray, and sometimes even brown. If it has fur, that means it is a mammal. The characteristics of mammals are that they have fur, they give live birth, and they also feed their young milk from their bodies. Fun fact, even though you might think elephants aren't mammals they actually are. You have to get really close to them to see it but they have hairs. Just like badgers.

Appetite

Did you know the Badger will sometimes play dead to trick it's enemies? It does that because it thinks most predators won't eat dead... Badger? It also uses its claws to hurt predators. It likes to eat berries , plums , cherries , fish and mice.

HABITAT

My animal's habitat is located in western and southern parts of Europe. It lives in forests and rocky places. It has never been seen in America except for some zoos in America. I really would like to see one alive of course!

WEIGHT AND SIZE

By the way, a badger can weigh from 11kg to 13kg. That is kind of light. The length is 60 to 90cm.
