By Tera

There once was a selfish
King

There were two little twin baby boys Their mother loved them very much but the evil king her brother was threatened by the boys he thought they would be more powerful than him. Their names were Romulus and Remus. The crazy jerk king told one of his servants that he had a radiant soul to drown the innocent boys. The mother pleaded her brother to not drown the boys meanwhile the servant was going to disobey the king. He would get fired but he did not know what to do so he got a basket and then there were two men the soldiers the king's soldiers the servant thought that they were the king new that he did not drown them so the servant put the boys in the basket and put them in the Tiber river

The Tiber Running River

As the boys were floating around the river they were getting water all on themselves. But as they were drifting off a she wolf was getting a drink from the river she grab the basket with her teeth and dragged it back to her cave. She saw that they were hungry. She gave them the same milk she gave her pups. One day a shepherd was walking by a the wolf though he could adopt them she drag the basket over and he said "Stay back."she ran away and he looked in the basket and adopted them.

THE sad thing about Romulus and Remus

When they were older they wanted to build a city but Romulus said I want to build it here No said Remus let's build it here said Remus. They build on a different side of the hill Romulus build on he's side of the hill and the build it on different sides of the hill. One day Remus came to visit Romulus on his work and Remus said you call this a wall and stepped over it that day they fought to the death. Then Remus fell to the ground and died Romulus din't mean to kill his brother then Romulus named his city Rome.
